Thank you, Antonio!

On June 26, 1959, Antonio Monti as a firefighter was in Olgiate Olona on the site of the plane crash: an unforgettable hell, so he told me on January 22, 2009, in Vergiate, crying.

Since then, Antonio always returned to Olgiate Olona to commemorate the fifth worst disaster of civil aviation in Italy: moved, serene, with tears mitigated by hugging the relatives of the seventy immortal lives.

Thank you, Antonio! On this earth you enriched Olgiate Olona and the big family of June 26, 1959, living worldwide, with tangible gestures of memory and solidarity.

Now in the Afterlife your wife Marisa accompanies you to contemplate God face to face and to embrace the seventy angels whose mortal body fell to the ground and whose spirit soared towards immortality.

Antonio, from the infinite skies of eternity protect your loved ones and smile at us again. Wait for us there!
